XVII International Congress of Christian Archaeology 2018

Utrecht-Nijmegen

(The Netherlands)

July 2-6, 2018

Frontiers

The Transformation and Christianization of the Roman Empire between Centre and Periphery

The 17th International Congress of Christian Archaeology is set to take place in the Netherlands, from July 2 – 6, 2018. It will be hosted jointly by Utrecht University and by the Radboud University Nijmegen. The Congress is organized in collaboration with the Comitato Promotore Permanente dei Congressi Internazionali di Archeologia Cristiana.

Focusing on the question of boundaries, borders, and frontier zones, the Congress offers a rich and dense program. Presentations center on the latest archaeological discoveries in the border regions of the later Roman Empire, from Britannia in the West through Mesopotamia in the East.

On Tuesday, July 3, 2018 there will be a special session devoted to the present-day destruction of Christian Cultural Heritage in the Near East.

Practical Information

For the full program and on how to register, please consult our website: https://ciac.sites.uu.nl. Further information on excursions organized within the context of the congress and concerning accommodation can also be found there. For specific questions you may also contact the congress's secretariat at: CIAC2018@let.ru.nl

PONTIFICIO ISTITUTO DI ARCHEOLOGIA CRISTIANA

Utrecht University

Radboud University